Afcons Infrastructure, a subsidiary of leading Indian engineering and construction group Shapoorji Pallonji, has announced that its South Surra Road Project in Kuwait is at a substantial completion stage.

A leading infrastructure development major, Afcons has a diverse experience of on-time execution of over 350 infrastructure projects in more than 25 countries.

As the first Indian organisation to execute an infrastructure project in Kuwait, Afcons has displayed exemplary engineering skills in construction of interchanges, roads, troughs, signalised intersections, pedestrian bridges, and, probably, Kuwait's longest storm water detention tank.

The project has clocked in 18 million safe man hours, and, has registered several engineering benchmarks in the region, it added. -TradeArabia News Service
